

Children in Crossfire – Reduced Inequalities

As a development organisation all the work that Children in Crossfire does is situated within a broader context of working to eradicate poverty and hunger for all and bringing about a more compassionate and sustainable world. We work hard to tackle the fact that 80% of the world's population owns only 20% of the world's overall wealth. We contribute to Ireland's Development Aid policy which seeks to reduce poverty and empower people to make full use of their human rights, and works towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

Through our two-pronged approach to development, we endeavour to contribute to SDG 10 – 'Reduced Inequalities' which refers to 'reducing inequality within and among countries'.

Through our overseas work in both Tanzania and Ethiopia, we place our focus on Early Childhood Development as a means to contribute to this goal. We work in a capacity-building basis with our overseas partners to change the conditions for children caught up in the crossfire of poverty and inequality.

We also work across Ireland and the UK through our Development Education and Public Engagement programmes. Through working with schools and community groups, we strive to increase awareness around the structures that create and sustain global inequalities so that people can find their role in creating a fairer and more compassionate world. We believe that in order for change to fully take place that people, communities and governments all need to work together to ensure that the right conditions are put in place for all.
